FOREWORD

NATIONAL GENDER STRATEGY

Tanzania recognizes that gender inequality is a major obstacle to socio-economic and political development of its peoples. Many studies have shown that gender inequality is one of the underlying causes of low productivity as it does, among other things, hamper the participation of at least half of the country's population.

In recognition of this fact the government of the United Republic of Tanzania has taken various measures to ensure equality of all its citizens and, in particular, gender equality and gender equity.

The Ministry of Community Development, Gender and Children was established in 1990 as the national machinery for spearheading gender development in the country. The Ministry, among other things, has facilitated the formulation of the Women and Gender Development Policy (2000). The aim of this policy is to ensure that the gender perspective is mainstreamed into all policies, programmes and strategies. In order to meet this objective, the national machinery initiated the establishment of gender focal points in ministries, independent government departments, regional and local authorities. These focal points in turn will be responsible for gender mainstreaming in their respective plans and programmes, while working with the national machinery, which has a coordinating role in gender development.

This, together with other legislative, administrative and affirmative actions has enabled Tanzania to record remarkable achievements in gender development. Notable areas in this regard are education, health and water; economic empowerment and participation in decision-making. Despite these achievements Tanzania as a nation is still faced with a number of challenges. These challenges cannot be overcome without ensuring that all stake holders play their role in attaining that goal of gender equity and gender equality, as sine qua non for sustainable social and economic development. It is in this regard that the National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD) has been put in place.

The National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD) highlights the major issues of concern to gender equality while exposing the challenges ahead. It thus provides guidance on interventions to be made and identifies roles of various actors and stakeholders. The NSGD also suggests co-ordination mechanisms that will facilitate the participation of the various actors, and how they could create the requisite linkages. It is hoped that the NSGD will not only make implementation of the Women and Gender Development more focused, but it will also make that implementation more result-oriented. I therefore, call upon all actors and stakeholders to identify their roles within the NSGD and play their part committedly.

We acknowledge with thanks the inputs of all actors and stakeholders who so diligently worked to have this Strategy in place. Special tribute is paid to the World Bank who supported the ground who works for the Strategy and the United Nations Fund for Population Activities co-ordinated the joint efforts of our Ministry and development partners. We look forward to yet further co-operation between us.

Dr. Asha-Rose Migiro

GENDER AND CHILDREN

STATEMENT

NATIONAL STRATEGY FOR GENDER DEVELOPMENT

The National Strategy for Gender Development is a step forward among other things towards laying foundation in promoting gender equality and equity in the country. It is one of the efforts in implementing the Platform for Action and the Fourth World Conference on Women. The government of Tanzania has made a firm political commitment to support any initiatives that are focused at alleviating gender inequality in economic, education, training and employment at all levels.

Despite the various measures being undertaken to address gender equality and equity, the government still faces a number of challenges that continues to hamper its capacity in implementing its role of providing institutional support to all sectors to attain their missions with gender responsiveness. To be able to play this role effectively and efficiently more effort is needed. That is why the MCDGC has developed the NSGD with the objective of accelerating the attainment of gender equality in the Country.

The NSGD highlights the major issues of concern to gender equality, challenges and provides guidance on the interventions and identifies the roles of various actors and the coordination mechanisms to facilitate the participation and linkages of the various actors. The NSGD Matrix presents the logical framework and includes objectives strategies, activities, performance indicators, actors and timeframe. The activities identified in the matrix are not exhaustive. Actors are responsible for identifying specific detailed sectoral activities that will be taken up during the implementation of the NSGD also in line with the National Strategy for Growth and Reduction of Poverty.

Gender as a crosscutting issue, has many actors who are playing various roles in all aspects of development. The main actors are government institutions, private sector, civil society communities and development partners

The success of the NSGD will however depend on the ability of each of the various actors to implement it effectively while recognizing the need to have in place strong Women National Machinery which is at present the Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children. The Ministry is committed to ensuring gender equality and parity in Tanzania for coordinating and linking the activities of the various actors.

CHAPTER I: BACKGROUND

1.0. Introduction

The socio-economic development of Tanzania is dependent on the full utilization of its human resource, both women and men. The society realizes that the continued marginalization and under-utilization of women who constitute 5.11 percent (population census 2002) of the population is a major obstacle to rapid socio-economic development of the country.

The Government has taken measures to address gender concerns in the Constitution of the United Republic of Tanzania, macro and micro policies, strategies and programmes.

The Government amended the 1977 Constitution in 2000 and 2004 among other things, to increase women's participation in the National Parliament and Local Authorities. The Government also formulated the Women and Gender Development Policy (2000) to put more emphasis on the Women in Development Policy (WID) (1992) in line with the Beijing Platform for Action.

To ensure effective implementation of the Women and Gender Development Policy, a National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD) to promote gender equality and equity has been prepared. This strategy covers key areas of gender concerns stipulated in the Women and Gender Development Policy.

1.1 Layout of the National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD)

The National Strategy for Gender Development is presented in five chapters. Chapter One contains background information, which includes sections on introduction, gender preparation of the NSGD, gender development in Tanzania, challenges, rationale, aims, goal and objectives, links to other National policies and definition of selected gender concepts.

Chapter Two is devoted to Policy Concerns on areas to be addressed. Chapter Three is on the Implementation Framework of the National Strategy for Gender Development while Chapter Four provides details for Monitoring, Evaluation and Research and Chapter Five is the Logical Framework and Matrix.

1.2 Preparation of the NSGD

The NSGD is a product of participatory broad based consultation, which involved a wide range of stakeholders including Government Ministries and Institutions, Local Government Authorities, Development Partners, Academic Institutions, Civil Society Organizations, individuals and teams of experts whose contributions are recognized.

1.3 Gender Development in Tanzania

The Constitution of the United Republic of Tanzania endorses gender equality and equity and guarantees full participation of women and men in social, economic and political life. The Government is also implementing international commitments as enshrined in the United Nations Charter and on the Human Rights Declaration (1948), the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) (1979), the Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) (1989), Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (1995), AU Solemn Declaration on Gender Equality and the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples Rights on the Rights of Women (2003) World Summit 2005 Resolution on Gender Equality and Empowerment of Women, Policy on Women and Gender Development (2000), SADC Declaration on Gender and Development (1999) Addendum on Prevention and Elimination of Violence Against Women and Children (1998), and the East African Community (EAC) Treaty (1998). Despite efforts to implement these Declarations and Conventions, gender imbalances still exist in various aspects.

The Government has also established mechanisms for gender policy formulation, coordination, monitoring and evaluation of implementation of gender development policy, gender mainstreaming programmes and plans. The mechanisms include establishment of a Ministry responsible for gender development, setting up Gender Desks in Ministries, Independent Departments, Regional and District Authorities.

1.4 Challenges

Patriarchal system, customs and traditions that discriminate women continue to perpetuate gender inequalities, gender capacity and institutional aspects. Similarly efforts to promote gender equality and equity encounter the following challenges: -

- Empowerment of both women and men equally on the basis of merit;
- Ensuring that macro and micro policies are gender sensitive;
- Ensuring that the Legal Framework is gender sensitive;
- Strengthening institutional mechanisms for gender development;
- Ensuring sustainable partnerships and collaboration;
- Ensuring that adequate resources are available to address gender inequalities and
- Inadequate capacities for coordination, monitoring, evaluation, advocacy and follow-up of implementation of policies, strategies, plans and programmes.

1.5 Rationale for the NSGD

The rationale for the NSGD is to guide further implementation of the Women and Gender Development Policy, Conventions, Laws and Programmes. Within the context of the National Strategy for Growth and Reduction of Poverty (MKUKUTA). Specifically the NSGD is designed to guide stakeholders to: -

- Speed up progress implementation of Women and Gender Development Policy;
- Speed up implementation of national, regional and international commitments on gender equality and empowerment of women;
- Integrate gender issues into macro and sectoral policies ;
- Link up with collaborating partners and civil organizations;
- Enhance coordination, accountability, monitoring, evaluation and research.

1.6 Aim, Goal and Objectives of the NSGD

The aim of the NSGD is to consolidate and speed up implementation of the Women and Gender Development Policy, which strives to redress gender gaps and inequalities between men and women. It also aims to guide implementers to incorporate gender concerns into their policies, plans, strategies and programmes with a view to implementing commitments at international, regional and national levels.

The goal of the National Strategy for Gender Development is to achieve gender equality and equity in Tanzania as stipulated in the national Constitution and the Women and Gender Development Policy.

The Objective of NSGD is to guide and involve all stakeholders to bring about gender equality in a more harmonized manner for enhanced development.

1.7 Links to other National policies

The National Strategy for Gender Development builds on the Tanzania Development Vision 2025, the Women and Gender Development policy, structural reforms, a National Strategy for Growth and Reduction of Poverty (NSGRP), the Millennium Declaration and Millennium Development Goals.

These policies and strategies are geared to promote gender equality and equity.

1.8 Definitions of Selected Gender Concepts

1.8.1 Gender and Sex

The term gender refers to the culturally and socially determined characteristics, values, norms, roles, attitudes and beliefs attributed to women and men through constructed identity in a society. Gender relationships differ from one social setting to another and can change from time to time. Sex refers to the biological difference of women and men.

1.8.2. Gender Mainstreaming

Gender mainstreaming involves the integration of gender concerns into Policies, programmes, projects, monitoring and evaluation processes with the Objective of reducing inequalities between women and men.

It refers to a process of planning for specific needs of both women and men at all levels, with the ultimate goal of achieving gender equality and equity.

1.8.3 Gender blind

This is a conscious or unconscious way of doing or saying things without recognizing or considering differences in position, needs and feelings based on gender.

1.8.4 Gender Bias

Gender bias occurs when there are gender disparities and differential treatments given to people on the basis of sex such as resources and opportunities for better life.

1.8.5 Gender Discrimination

Gender discrimination occurs when one sex is treated either better or worse than the other on the basis of sex.

1.8.6 Gender Oppression

Gender oppression is a result of imbalance of power between women and men. Gender oppression occurs when one sex is treated in cruel, harsh manner or made to feel uncomfortable or unhappy in socio-economic and political life.

1.8.7 Gender stereotyping

Gender stereotyping is a way of thinking that persists in people's attitudes and practices and is also often reflected in policies and laws of a country or community.

1.8.8 Gender Division of Labour

Gender division of labour refers to the classification and allocation of tasks for women and men in managing domestic and community activities. Gender division of labour inflicts gender stereotyping.

1.8.9 Gender Violence

Gender violence refers to any act, omission or conduct by means of which physical, sexual or mental suffering is inflicted directly or indirectly, through threat, coercion, or any other means on any person with the purpose of intimidating, punishing, humiliating, maintaining sex stereotyped roles, undermining the security of a person, self respect or diminishing physical or mental capacities.

1.8.10 Gender and Development

Gender and development refers to the effort of addressing issues concerning equal opportunities for both women and men. The main goal is to change or redress the inequalities between women and men for sustainable development.

1.8.11 Gender Equality

Gender equality refers to equal and fair treatment of women and men members of a community in provision and access to goods and services required to meet their social needs. It includes fair treatment before the law, the undeniable right to life by each member of the community.

1.8.12 Gender Equity

Equity is synonymous with fair opportunity in access to social services. Gender equity therefore means fair opportunity and access to social services for both women and men.

1.8.13 Gender/sex disaggregated data

Gender/sex disaggregated data is used for identifying and highlighting the differences for women and men in all aspects of life.

CHAPTER II: POLICY CONCERNS

2.0 Introduction

The consultation process of preparing the National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD) began in 2001, after the adoption of Women and Gender Development Policy (2000). The process sought to strengthen participation in ownership of strategy by actors at different levels of Government, Non-governmental Organizations, Civil Society Organizations and Development Partners. The main issues that emerged during the consultations process and which influence the design of the strategy are the existence of gender inequality in the country as well as HIV/AIDS pandemic. The NSGD development process was coordinated by the Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children.

2.1 Areas of Gender Concern

The major areas of gender policy concerns in the NSGD are:

1. Institutional Framework.
2. Decision-Making and Power.
3. Legal and Human Rights.
4. Education.
5. Training.
6. Economic Empowerment.
7. Employment.
8. General and Reproductive Health.
9. HIV/AIDS.
10. Food Security and Nutrition.
11. Division of Labour.
12. Information, Education and Communication.
13. Appropriate Technology.
14. Environmental Protection and Conservation.
15. Access and Ownership of Resources.
16. Gender Mainstreaming.

- 17 Gender/Sex Disaggregated Data.
18. Social Security.
- 19 Community Participation.
20. Customs and Traditions.

2.1.1 Policy Concern : Institutional Framework

2.1.1.1 Background information

Clear institutional framework and coordination is an essential tool in intervention of development programmes. In the broadest sense, an institutional framework includes structures, mechanisms that are laws and norms that control the operations of a system. In order to attain the goals and objectives of the system, proper coordination, monitoring and evaluation is also required.

The Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children is the National Machinery for gender development. It is responsible for gender mainstreaming, professional backstopping, reporting on regional and international commitments relating to gender development.

In view of the fact that gender is a cross cutting issue, Gender Focal Points have been established and institutionalized in Government Ministries, Independent Departments and Local Government Authorities.

The Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children executes its roles and responsibilities through Community Development Workers located in all Regional Secretariat and the Local Government Authorities. There is also close collaboration with NGO's and CBO's who are doing well in gender activities. Despite the good linkages, there are challenges that remain in the area of Institutional Framework. These include the following: -

- Inadequate capacity for gender mainstreaming into policies, strategies, programmes and plans.
- Inadequate reporting and monitoring mechanism among different actors to facilitate proper recording and reporting.

2.1.1.2 Policy Statement

Capacity of actors be built in the existing administration and development structures to ensure sustainable collaboration and coordination for proper planning and implementation of gender based programmes.

	2.1.1.3 Objective		2.1.1.4 Strategies
1	Capacity building of Ministries, Departments and other institutions including Local Government Authorities.	a	Provide gender training/sensitization to Policy makers, Planners and Gender Focal Points and other actors on gender analysis, gender policy, and gender budgeting, coordination and networking.
		b	Promote exchange of visits and study tours among different actors
		c	Strengthen links and networking within the MCDGC.

2.1.2 Policy Concern: Decision–Making and Power.

2.1.2.1 Background Information.

In Tanzania attitudes towards women’s capacities to decision-making are changing and more women are being appointed to higher positions of decision-making roles in conformity with national laws and Government commitments to international conventions to reach the target of minimum 50 percent women leaders by 2015. Women are still inadequately represented in the decision-making process at all levels, despite affirmative actions taken by the Government in the past years. At household level, attitudes still exist that men are automatic heads and breadwinners. These attitudes are based on the patriarchal structures that limit women’s voices to adequately be heard and influence family decisions on resources and other social matters.

This practice limits women’s chances of promotions and appointments to higher positions in the public and private sectors. Stereotype curricula have been reviewed and attitudes of parents on gender roles, which, in the past discouraged girls from career opportunities are also changing. More effort is required to promote girls’ education and strengthen mechanisms to enhance women’s access to higher positions of decision- making in both the public and private sectors.

2.1.2..2 Policy Statement.

Women be empowered so as to enable them participate fully and equally with men in decision- making at different levels.

	2.1.2.3 Objectives		2.1.2.4 Strategies
1	Instituting effective mechanism for women`s management capacity building and appointments.	a	Facilitate and support women in political participation and contest for election.
2	Institute mechanism for career development programmes for girls, women and men.	a	Design and install mechanisms for career development for girls, women and men
3	Building capacity of women Parliamentarians and councilors	a	Facilitate tailor-made courses.

2.1.3 Policy Concern: Legal and Human Rights

2.1.3.1 Background information

Tanzania operates under a dual legal system, consisting of customary and religious laws. Under the Constitution of the United Republic of Tanzania of 1977 all people are protected against discrimination as all people are said to be equal before the Law. The Constitution stipulates clearly that there should be no law that is discriminative and it is forbidden to discriminate against any person on any ground. However, some of the laws, especially customary laws continue to violate human rights and perpetuate oppression against vulnerable groups in the society. For example women are denied their right to access and control over resources especially after the death of their legitimate husbands.

The Government is committed to promote equality and equity between women and men. In this regard it has established the Human Rights and Good Governance Commission, amended the Public Leadership Code of Ethics and has passed laws to protect women, girls and children. These are: The Sexual Offences (Special Provisions) Act No. 8 of 1998, the Land Act No. 4 of 1999 and Village Land Act No. 5 of 1999. Other laws are being reviewed. These include the Marriage Act No. 5 of 1971, Succession and Inheritance Laws and laws relating to children.

Despite these efforts, violence against women and children still persists in the country. Many cases of violence against women and children occur and are not reported due to various reasons such as ignorance, fear of intimidation and shying off. Incidences of violence and sexual abuse are often found at the family level and work places. Many children are vulnerable to abuse and exploitation. Girls tend to suffer more than boys. They are subjected to sexual abuse, child labour, early marriages, teenage pregnancies, genital mutilation and are affected more by HIV/AIDS.

2.1.3.2 Policy statement

The legal system be reviewed to take into account women's rights as human rights; laws translated into Kiswahili and into popular versions and be made available to communities and other stakeholders.

2.1.3.3 Objectives		2.1.3.4 Strategies
1	Reviewing and repealing discriminatory laws.	a	Amend Marriage Act No. 5 (1971) and laws related to Succession, Inheritance and Children Rights and other discriminatory laws.
		b	Undertake research on Customary Laws with a view to identifying discriminatory provisions and recommend improvements.
2	Sensitizing law enforcers and other stakeholders on human rights and conducting awareness	a	Provide legal gender sensitization training for law enforcers, legal services and other stakeholders.

2.1.3.3 Objectives		2.1.3.4 Strategies
	campaigns.	b	Prepare training and campaign materials on women legal rights and disseminate them appropriately
3	Having a network of paralegal services at District and local levels.	a	Promote the establishment of paralegal Services at all levels.
4	Having communities knowledgeable of the judiciary system and laws.	a	Dissemination of laws and procedures.
		b	Sensitization on the legal system.

2.1.4 Policy Concern: Education

2.1.4.1 Background Information

Tanzania has always cited education as a priority area for attention to resource investments since independence in 1961. Education plays a key role for sustainable social, cultural, political and economic development. The benefits that emanate from education are well known and recognized at all levels of the society. Education promotes quality of life, good health, access to paid employment, decision making, productivity in both market and non-market work and facilitates social and political participation. Hence both men and women should experience such benefits in a fair and equitable manner.

The existing stereotype attitudes, still favour education for boys than girls in most communities. As a result majority of girls tend to concentrate on stereotype fields of study such as home economics, secretarial courses and nursing. Other shortcomings of the education system include limited budgetary allocations gender insensitive school management practices, unfriendly learning environment for girls and people with disabilities, inadequate trained teachers on gender issues, gender biased curricula, social and cultural values which are resistant to change for girls' education. Poverty and work overload for girls and women at household level continue to be major obstacles which cause drop-out of both girls and boys in school and training institutions.

2.1.4.2 Policy statement

Equal access to education be enhanced and ensured for boys and girls, women and men.

2.1.4.3 Objective	2.1.4.4 Strategies
Having in place a mechanism to guaranteed equal opportunities, for girls and boys in education.	a	Expansion of education infrastructure and facilities in primary, secondary and high learning institutions.
	b	Sensitize and motivate community members to participate in constructing and renovating schools for more girls and women to enroll in science subjects.
	c	Introduce gender basic course for teachers.
	d	Ensure adequate and availability of gender sensitive teaching and learning materials.
	e	Increased enrollment rate and retention for girls in the institutions of higher learning..

2.1.5 Policy Concern: Training

2.1.5.1 Background Information

Training empowers women and men with skills which enhance their performance in planning, management, entrepreneurship, business, administration, in undertaking various vocational trades and other traditional and non traditional development skills. Most Vocational Training Institutions were established to cater for men and boys, as a result, majority of girls and women have been left out of the mainstream of vocational training. Girls and women should be encouraged to take up non-traditional or male dominated trades. More Vocational trades need to be established to cater for the female dominated trades. Furthermore, women who join vocational training colleges offering non-traditional skills such as plumbing, mechanics and masonry, are still very few and therefore need to be increased.

2.1.5.2 Policy Statement

Training opportunities be enhanced in order to empower women with skills and abilities that will enable them to effectively participate in socio-economic development.

2.1.5.3 Objectives		2. 1.5.4 Strategies
1	Having in place an effective mechanism for equal access to training for men and women.	a	Sensitize and encourage girls and women to take up non-traditional or male dominated trades.
		b	Make information available on training opportunities.
		c	Put in place training programmes at work place with a gender perspective.
		d	Promote community education that responds to local needs.
2	Having more women enrolled in vocational training and higher education institutions at 50/50 ratio between men and women.	Develop more trades that are gender friendly.

2.1.6 Policy Concern : Economic empowerment

2.1.6.1 Background Information

Women have consistently constituted over 50 percent of the country's population. About 90 percent of them live in rural areas engaged in agricultural and livestock keeping for their livelihood and economic prosperity, and hence vulnerable to poverty. Women's economic activities depends on geographical location and climatic variations .Level of Women's education, tradition roles, age and reproductive roles, all affect productivity and development. These women still face many problems despite Government effort to reduce women's workload, increase social services and reduce poverty for increased prosperity.

Urban women are mostly engaged in small scale businesses particularly in the informal sector. Urban women are mostly engaged in small scale businesses particularly in the informal sector. Urban women also face problems in their struggle for economic and social prosperity. Lack of entrepreneurial skills, management problems, inadequate capital and security contribute to low productivity, persistent poverty and low social status.

2.1.6.2 Policy Statement

A conducive environment be put in place to ensure that women and men are economically empowered and have access to capital and markets.

	2.1.6.3 Objective		2.1.6.4 Strategies
	Having women economically empowered and their opportunities enhanced.	A	Sensitize women and men to establish economic groups such as SACCOS and access credits for income generating activities.
		b	Provide training on entrepreneurship to women and facilitate access to profitable markets.

2.1.7 Policy Concern: Employment

2.1.7.1 Background Information

Despite the provision in the Constitution that provide equal opportunities for both female and male citizens in employment, women still find it difficult to compete with men due to some women's low academic qualifications and stereotyped male domination.

Furthermore, there is inadequate recognition by employers of the women's value of their triple roles that is reproductive, productive and executive roles in the society. There is need to change the mindset of employers with a view to create and promote equal opportunities to all employees in order to promote gender equality.

2.1.7.2 Policy Statement:

Create conducive environment for equal opportunities in employment for both women and men.

	2.1.7.2 Objectives		2.1.7.3 Strategies
1	Enhancing entrepreneurship and managerial skills for women and men.	a	Provide and improve entrepreneurship skills and credit facilities.
		b	Establish a database on type of employment and positions by sex.
		c	Improve occupational health and safety control measures to safeguard both men's and women's health.
2	Having more women promoted to higher political and administrative positions.		Provide managerial skills for women workers and sensitize them on confidence building
3	Eliminating all forms of discrimination against women at Work place.	a	Provide conducive environment for promoting equal opportunities in accessing employment.
		b	Sensitize public to value the triple-role undertaken by women

2.1.8 Policy Concern : General and Reproductive Health

2.1.8.1 Background Information

According to the results of the Tanzania Demographic and Health Survey (TDHS) 2004/05, Maternal Mortality Rate (MMR) is still recognized as a serious health problem in Tanzania. The TDHS (2004/05) show that maternal mortality rate is 578 per 100,000 live births higher than the 529/100,000 rate shown in the TDHS 1996 figure.

The same TDHS 2004/05 indicates that Infant Mortality Rate is 68 per 1,000 live births while the under five mortality rate is 112 per 1000 live births. It has dropped significantly from 147 per 1,000 live births in 1999.

Malaria is also a major public health concern in Tanzania especially among pregnant women and children under the age of five years. The use of insecticide – treated nets (ITN) is one primary health intervention. The TDHS 2004/05 indicated that only 14 percent of households covered in the survey used the ITNs. This is an indicator of low response to the intervention probably due to low income levels of households and low education.

Furthermore, women, particularly those with disabilities, have unequal opportunities for protection, promotion and maintenance of their health. Women have limited powers and decision-making over their sexual and reproductive lives. They also have limited gender sensitive training on health, access to health information services and are more vulnerable than men to sexually transmitted diseases.

Environmental hazards also have dangerous impact on women's health than men as they are exposed to cleaning, washing substances such as toxic detergents and pesticides, caring of AIDS patients at homes and thus expose them to extreme danger of contracting HIV/AIDS.

Other contributing factors to poor health of women include low education, food taboos due to customs, traditions and beliefs, food insecurity during times of famine, inadequate and unpredictable water supply, inadequate provision of health and sanitation services and less involvement of women in HIV/AIDS campaigns.

2.1.8.2 Policy Statement

Women's access to health care facilities and quality reproductive health care services be ensured.

	2.1.8.3 Objective		2.1.8.4 Strategies
1	Having more women accessing health care facilities and quality reproductive health services.	a	Conduct immunization and health education campaigns to the general public.
		b	Increase coverage of reproductive health and health care services to reduce mortality rates.
		c	Improve the capacity of health facilities in terms of human resources, equipment and drugs.

2.1.9 Policy Concern :HIV/AIDS

2.1.9.1 Background Information

The HIV/AIDS pandemic is a serious threat to Tanzania's social and economic development. It is estimated that over 2.0 million people are living with HIV/AIDS. The active group between 15 and 59 years, constituting about 70 percent of the population, is most vulnerable to the pandemic. Women and girls who constitute about 60 to 80 percent of the household labour force are more vulnerable to the disease due to both biological and social factors. The situation for women is aggravated by the added burden placed on them by the traditional responsibilities of caring for the sick including HIV/AIDS victims and most often without protective gear hence exposing them to further risks of being infected.

HIV/AIDS preventive interventions have been instituted as a multi-sectoral concern since the year 2000. Each sector is requested to draw its strategy based on the National HIV/AIDS Policy of 2000 and the National Multi-Sectoral HIV/AIDS Strategic Framework 2003 – 2007, which aims at reducing the spread of HIV and mitigating impact of AIDS.

2.1.9.2 Policy Statement

Communities be sensitized on HIV/AIDS and its impact with the view to reduce new infections, stigma and discrimination mitigation.

	2.1.9.3 Objective		2.1.9.4 Strategies
1	Changing attitudes and behaviour of people towards HIV/AIDS pandemic.	a	Publicize and disseminate the Community Based Strategy for Protection of Women and Men Against HIV/AIDS.
		b	Implement gender sensitive programmes on prevention of HIV/AIDS.

2.1.10 Policy Concern :Food Security and Nutrition

2.1.10.1 Background Information

Food security exists where all people at all levels have physical, social and economic access to sufficient and safe food to meet their nutritional needs and cultural preference for active and health life. However, poor nutrition is common especially for children, orphans, pregnant women and lactating mothers and children in difficult situations. Malnutrition is also a manifestation of the social processes based on customs, traditions and beliefs.

Undernourishment and malnutrition due to poor food security and unbalanced diet are common in both rural and urban areas. Malnutrition related diseases include protein energy malnutrition, iron and iodine deficiency disorders, vitamin “A” deficiency, kwashiorkor and marasmus, are common among children.

Stunting is the outcome of failure to get adequate nutrition over an extended period and is also affected by recurrence or chronic illness.

2.1.10.2 Policy Statement

Measures that are geared to address problems of food insecurity and poor nutrition be promoted.

	2.1.10.3 Objectives		2.1.10.4 Strategies
1	Increasing availability, accessibility and utilization of adequate food.	a	Promote provision of nutritional education to communities.
		b	Enhance skills for food preparation and balanced diet aspects in the education curriculum at all levels.
2	Raising nutrition standard of men and women with special nutritional needs at all levels.		Promote nutritional education to people with special needs.
3	Strengthening and expanding the primary school feeding programme in all Districts.		Promote primary school feeding in all Districts.

2.1.11 Policy Concern: Division of Labour

2.1.11.1 Background Information

Both men and women are involved in reproductive, productive, community and leadership roles. However, women in rural and urban areas bear a heavier workload than men that inhibit them in participating in development activities. In addition to reproductive and productive roles women in rural areas spend between 16 to 18 hours per day working compared to men who work between 8 to 10 hours per day. Customs, traditions and culture are the main cause of unequal division of labour between women and men.

2.1.11.2 Policy Statement

Communities be empowered to articulate equitable division of labour at family and other levels.

	2.1.11.3 Objective		2.1.11.4 Strategies
	Families practicing equitable division of labour and resources.	a	Campaign against customs and traditions that limit equal division of labour and resources between women and men at all levels.
		b	Sensitize and encourage men to participate fully in household chores.

2.1.12 Policy Concern : Information, Education and Communication

2.1.12.1 Background Information

The mass media is a powerful and important instrument that can be used to bring awareness and public education on various national issues such as gender development, policies, laws and regulations, HIV/AIDS, legal and human rights. Media includes the electronic media (Radio, TV, E-mail), the print media (newspapers, magazines, brochures, pamphlets and posters) and the folk/community media,(traditional dances, songs, artists, poetry, poems and forum theatre) can be used to convey information and education to communities. In Tanzania the print and electronic media are not readily available in the rural areas. This means that the folk media to a greater extent is the main means that can be used in rural areas.

2.1.12.2 Policy Statement

Information Education and Communication mechanisms be strengthened and established in the urban and rural areas respectively to facilitate knowledge and experience sharing in matters related to gender equality.

2.1.12.3 Objective		2.1.12.4 Strategies
Having more gender sensitive media programmes.	a	Strengthen media with gender perspective information and programs in the urban and rural areas.
	b	Strengthen gender capacities of media actors through media curriculum for media training institutions
	c	Training and promoting both women and men including those with disabilities on management of media.

2.1.13 Policy Concern: Appropriate Technology

2.1.13.1 Background Information

In Tanzania particularly in rural areas women are overburdened by heavy workload emanating from their double roles (reproductive and productive). Furthermore, the heavy workload and sex based division of labour at household level is influenced by customs and traditions and is further aggravated by lack of appropriate technology for women's work.

Factors that hinder effective use of appropriate technology include among others: -

- Limited information on the availability of such technology especially in the rural areas.
- High distribution cost.
- Inadequate skilled human resource in maintenance and repair.
- The high costs of technologies.

2.1.13.2 Policy Statement

Communities be empowered to access and use appropriate technologies in their respective areas.

2.1.13.3 Objective		2.1.13.4 Strategies
1	Increasing use of appropriate technologies by communities	a	Inform the society on availability of different technologies in the country.
		b	Establish suitable procedures for accessibility, distribution and training in maintenance, operation and repair of such technologies.
		c	Design and promote user friendly technologies.
		d	Promote and encourage use of low cost and renewable energy such as biogas, natural gas, coal and electricity, instead of using firewood and charcoal.

2.14.1 Policy Concern :Environmental Protection and Conservation

2.1.14.1 Background Information

Environment and human development are highly interdependent. Persistent environmental mismanagement has adverse effects of gradually impairing human development. With increasing levels of pollution and degradation due to indiscriminate abstraction, poor land use practices, encroachment of land for agriculture, urbanization and industrial development, the lives of both women and men are negatively impacted.

2.1.14.2 Policy Statement

Communities and other stakeholders at all levels be sensitized on the importance of establishing gender balance in environmental management committees, to protect and preserve their surroundings and environment.

2.1.14.3 Objective		2.1.14.4 Strategies
1	Increasing environmental protection and conservation measures to ensure human and economic development.	a	Sensitize communities and other stakeholders on gender balance in environmental management.
		b	Provide tools and facilities for the protection and conservation of environment.

2.1.14 Policy Concern: Access and Ownership of Resources.

2.1.15.1 Background Information.

Due to social, traditional and cultural practices, most women do not own resources. Moreover, they do not make decisions on family resources and property. The fact that women do not own resources, limits their accessibility to loans for development. However, the Constitution of the United Republic of Tanzania recognizes the right of every person, women and men to own property and the right for protection of his or her property.

The Land Act of 1999 and Village Land Act of 1999 provide for complete gender equality in ownership, access and control over land. But, the Land laws are not known to the majority of the people both men and women. As a result they continue using the customary laws.

2.1.15.2 Policy Statement.

Put in place systems for equal access, control, use and disposal of resources by women and men.

	2.1.15.3 Objective		2.1.15.4 Strategies
1	Having Men and women empowered through allocation of resources equally and equitably.		Develop sensitization programmes to communities and service providers.
			Have in place appropriate mechanisms for equal provision of loans for women and men.

2.1.15 Policy Concern :Gender Mainstreaming

2.1.16.1 Background Information.

Social relations that exist between men and women in the society are patriarchal. These have influenced the division of gender roles, which are influenced by socialization, cultural and traditional practices. They have impact on income, resource allocation and opportunities to participate in politics, leadership, education and training. As a result there are gender gaps almost in all spheres of life. Gender mainstreaming has been recognized as an approach, which is designed to bridge the gender gaps pertaining to rights, peace, and socio-economic, cultural and political development.

2.1.16.2 Policy Statement:

Mainstream Gender in all policies, programmes, plans, strategies, budgets and activities to bridge the existing gender gaps at all levels.

	2.1.16.3 Objectives		2.1.16.4 Strategies
1	Having established and strengthened mechanisms for gender mainstreaming at all levels.	a	Capacity building of the National Gender Machinery, Gender Desks, Civil Societies, Private sector and CBOs, institutions at regional and district levels.
		b	Establish and strengthen gender institutional setups for promoting gender equality at Ministerial, Regional, District, Ward and Village/street levels.

2	Mainstreaming gender in all sectoral policies, programmes and strategies.	a	Review and formulate gender sensitive policies and programmes.
---	---	---	--

2.1.16 Policy Concern : Gender/Sex Disaggregated data

2.1.17.1 Background Information

Most statistics at all levels are not sex disaggregated to show contribution of men and women. As a result resource allocation is not directed towards differential gender needs.

2.1.17.2 Policy Statement

Ensure availability of gender disaggregated data and provision of guidelines that will enforce compliance to inclusion of gender/sex disaggregated data by actors at all levels.

2.1.17.3 Objective			2.1.17.4 Strategies
1	Having gender/sex disaggregated data at all Levels.	a	Facilitate data collection, analysis , utilization and establish a gender sex/ disaggregated database.
		b	Ensure gender/sex based resource allocation at all levels.

2.1.17 Policy Concern : Social Security

2.1.18.1 Background Information

Tanzania does not have a well-developed social security system, which can cater for all people, in rural and urban communities. Women are more likely to be affected unless concrete measures are taken to ensure that the existing and planned social security services target the majority of the people especially those in rural areas. As such, there is urgent need to establish social security services at all levels.

2.1.18.2 Policy statement

Social security services be established at all levels.

2.1.18.3 Objective			2.1.18.4 Strategies
1	Having established gender sensitive social security and protection schemes at all levels.	a	Sensitize and build capacity of Councils to enable them establish social security services.
		b	Establishment of gender responsive social security and protection schemes at all levels.

2.1.18 Policy Concern :Community Participation

2.1.19.1 Background Information

Community participation requires men and women to take part in all matters affecting their lives. It creates a sense of ownership by beneficiaries and hence ensures sustainability. Before decentralization in 1972 Tanzania achieved significant social and economic development because people through facilitation of community development workers, participated in implementation of development activities.

However, during decentralization such achievements started to decline because the government largely took over the responsibility of formulating, planning and implementation of development projects. As a result most of the programs undertaken during the decentralization era could not be sustained. The re-introduction of Local Government Authorities in early 1980s was done with the view to strengthen community participation for sustainable development.

2.1.19.2 Policy Statement

Men and women be empowered to realize their capacity in gender analysis and identification and finding solutions to problems, using available resources, to generate and increase income and raising their standard of living and hence attain sustainable development.

2.1.19.3 Objective		2.1.19.4 Strategies
1	Promoting community Participation.	a	Motivate and empower women's and men's participation in budgeting, planning and management of resources to ensure that both of them benefit.
		b	Promote participatory methodologies to communities.

2.1.20. Policy Concern : Customs and Traditions

2.1.20.1 Background Information

According to existing customs and traditions, some communities still perpetuate traditional practices, which affect women's and girls' social life. Due to existing patriarchal systems women are unable to make decisions regarding their health, distribution of resources and income gained at family level and decisions on reproductive health.

Harmful traditional practices such as Female Genital Mutilation (FGM), taboos that prohibit women from eating certain types of food, widow inheritance and cleansing procedures for widows, greatly affect the health of women.

2.1.20.2 Policy Statement

Create and sustain a society that is free from harmful practices, customs and traditions.

2.1.20.3 Objective		2.1.20.4 Strategies
1.	Having a society sensitized and free of harmful practices and traditions	a	Sensitize women and men to abandon harmful practices such as female genital mutilation, early marriages and widows' Inheritance.
		b	Sensitizing women and men on family planning for a desirable family size they can support.

CHAPTER III: IMPLEMENTATION FRAMEWORK

3.0 The Framework

This chapter explains the implementation arrangements for National Strategy for Gender Development (NSGD), which includes institutions' roles, responsibilities and harmonization of implementation processes.

The primary objective of the implementation plan is to identify and guide on specific actions which Ministries, Institutions, Independent Departments, Private Sector, Local Government Authorities, Civil Society Organizations, Community Based Organizations and communities will undertake in the short, medium and long term plans.

The Government will create an enabling environment for active participation of all stakeholders.

3.1 Roles and Responsibilities

3.1.1 The Ministry of Community Development, Gender and Children

The Ministry of Community Development, Gender and Children is the national machinery for gender development in the country. It will be responsible for the following: -

- Coordinating the implementation of the strategy and work closely with other actors.
- Providing professional backstopping to other implementers of gender development.
- Reporting implementation progress.
- Collect and disseminate information programmes.
- Maintain National Gender Database.

3.1.2 Sector Ministries

Sector Ministries will be responsible for sector policy guidance, supervision, coordination, implementation and monitoring activities, which are contributing towards achievement of gender equality and equity. They will also be responsible for identifying detailed priority activities that will be taken up during the implementation of the strategy.

3.1.3 Central Ministries

Central Ministries will be responsible for providing general guidelines on Gender Advancement, for example gender budgeting guidelines to sector Ministries. They will also be responsible for fund allocation to enhance gender mainstreaming.

3.1.4 Local Authorities

The Ministry responsible for Local Government will coordinate implementation of programmes at Regional and District levels. It will also be responsible for capacity building measures at the Local Government level. Furthermore, the Ministry will lead in collection and dissemination of gender disaggregated data from grassroots level to the national level and vice versa.

At the District level, Local Government Authorities (district/town/municipal/city councils/village) will plan and implement programmes within their areas of jurisdiction in collaboration with other actors including communities and households through participatory process. The Local Authorities will allocate adequate resources to support the implementation of the NSGD as well as to monitor and report progress on gender equality, equity and development. They will also be responsible for sensitizing various target groups on gender issues and facilitate generation; utilization and dissemination of gender disaggregated data and information.

3.1.5 The Private Sector

The Private Sector has an important role to play in achieving gender equality and equity. The Private Sector will include NGOs, CBOs and CSOs and Trade Unions. Their roles and responsibilities will include building local capacity and empowering communities, participating in monitoring and evaluation, mobilizing community resources and enhancing community participation. The Private Sector will work closely with Government Ministries and Local Authorities to ensure that gender is included in the implementation of sectoral and district plans.

3.1.6 Community

Communities will participate in planning, implementation and monitoring community activities supported by Government and other actors. Communities will also monitor the quality of services delivered to them. Mechanisms will be developed to enable communities to make leaders of local Authorities and Central Government accountable to the people they serve. They are also expected to implement the NSGD by providing gender disaggregated information concerning their families and societies surrounding them. They will also be expected to achieve attitudinal change towards gender equality.

3.1.7 Development Partners

Development partners will work closely with the MCDGC and other key actors in the implementation of the NSGD. They will make use of existing systems and processes to provide financial, technical and other support services. They will also facilitate capacity building initiatives to stakeholders including NGOs and CBOs.

CHAPTER IV: MONITORING, EVALUATION AND RESEARCH

4.0 Monitoring and Evaluation

Monitoring and Evaluation means keeping track of the implementation of strategies developed for each area of focus for the National Strategy for Gender Development. This is a continuous process involving timely collection of information about the day-to-day activities in the course of strategy implementation. This assessment is necessary to highlight shortcomings so that corrective action can be taken instead of waiting for final evaluation. The findings of monitoring and evaluation exercises should be made available to all stakeholders to enable cross-sectoral analysis. It also serves the purpose of determining if all stakeholders participating in the implementation of the strategy are receiving the outcomes they desire and if the strategy is producing the results that were anticipated during the formulation stage.

Monitoring and Evaluation of the National Strategy for Gender Development will be guided by the following: -

4.1 Implementation Plan

Adherence to the Logical Framework

4.2 National and Sectoral development Goals and Policies

Adherence to national and sectoral development policies and goals as stipulated either in the Country's Constitution or relevant sector policies, strategies and legislations.

4.3 Intersectoral Linkage and Synergies

Attention to linkages between the area of gender concern in the strategy and specific strategies within each area of concern to ensure there is consistency.

4.4 Indicators

The Logical framework contains objectives, strategies, activities, performance indicators, and actors that will be used for monitoring and evaluation purposes and time frame.

4.5 International Commitments

Adherence to international commitments as stipulated in the BPFA, CEDAW, SADC and ECA will be observed.

4.6 Gender Monitoring Indicators

It is recognized that various types of monitoring indicators such as the African Gender and Development Index, (Gender Status Index, African Women's Progress Scoreboard) CEDAW and SADC gender monitor are in place. The indicators shown in the logical framework of this strategy are the ones selected to be used in monitoring and evaluating the implementation of this strategy.

4.7 Institutional Arrangements for Monitoring and Evaluation.

The Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children is charged with coordination of gender initiatives in the country hence has the overall responsibility for monitoring and evaluating implementation of this strategy at the national level. In discharging its responsibility, as overall coordinator of this strategy, it will work in close collaboration with the Government structure. The Gender Focal Points, instituted in the Government structure will be responsible for monitoring and evaluating the implementation of the strategy in their respective institutions of jurisdiction. At the same time, they will provide information on gender development progress to The Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children. The Ministry of Community Development Gender and Children will also work with the Bureau of Statistics, Research Institutions, Academic Institutions, Private Sector, Non – Governmental Organizations, CBOs and Faith Organizations in order to get data and information that will be incorporated in the monitoring and reporting system of the strategy.

4.8 Research

Research is imperative for identifying issues that will require interventions to improve the strategies, methodology, performance criteria, implementation framework and evaluation.

CHAPTER V

5.0 Logical Framework of the NSGD AND MATRIX

The logical framework is a description of key elements in the National Strategy for Gender Development. It entails Objectives, Strategies, Activities, Performance Indicators, Actors and Timeframe.

The Objectives describe the desired medium and long-term development goals for which the intervention is supposed to contribute. It states the direct effects of the NSGD on the beneficiaries.

Strategies state the means to achieve the objectives and contribute to the base of schedule of activities, which are the actual tasks sequentially determined to transform means into results.

Performance indicators are elements, which measure output of activities implemented.

Actors are responsible persons or institutions that will be involved in the whole process. There are lead actors while others are stakeholders. In the case of implementing the NSGD, the MCDGC is the lead institution.

Time frame provides the duration of the implementation of activities planned to meet the set objectives. (Logical Framework is in the Annex).

ANNEX

5.0 LOGICAL FRAMEWORK MATRIX

5.1 Institutional Framework

	Objective		Strategies		Activities	Performance Indicators	Actors	Time Frame
	Capacity building of Ministries, Departments and other Institutions including Local Government Authorities.	a	Provide gender training/sensitization to Gender Focal Points and other actors on gender analysis, gender policy, budgeting, mainstreaming, coordination and networking.	i	Conduct regular training to Gender Focal Points and other stakeholders on gender mainstreaming.
